

Md. Rony Islam is an accomplished media and communication scholar, holding both Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Mass Communication and Journalism from the University of Dhaka, one of South Asia's most prestigious academic institutions. He graduated with First Class distinction in both programs, reflecting his consistent academic excellence and intellectual rigor.

From the outset of his academic journey, Mr. Islam demonstrated exceptional scholastic achievement, securing GPA 5.00 with distinction in both the Secondary School Certificate (SSC) and Higher Secondary Certificate (HSC) examinations.

His academic interests encompass broadcasting, media development, community communication, and audience studies. He has developed a research proposal on the FM radio industry in Bangladesh, focusing on its evolving role in contemporary communication, public engagement, and the changing media landscape. His work seeks to contribute to a deeper understanding of the opportunities and challenges facing radio broadcasting in the digital era.

In addition, Mr. Islam has conducted research and analytical work on community radio, exploring its significance as a participatory communication platform that promotes social inclusion, local empowerment, civic engagement, and sustainable development. His research reflects a strong commitment to understanding how media can serve as a catalyst for social transformation and democratic participation.

Combining academic excellence with a passion for research and innovation, Md. Rony Islam is dedicated to advancing knowledge in media and communication studies. He aspires to contribute to evidence-based scholarship, media policy discourse, and the development of inclusive communication systems at both national and international levels.
